BOOK BUZZ

Bonnie Easton

This month’s selections are evenly divided between two series mysteries and two books targeting women readers.

If you like Sheila Connolly’s County Cork cozy mysteries, you may also enjoy her Victorian Village series. The author was renovating a run-down cottage in County Cork shortly before she died in 2020, so, perhaps that venture was the inspiration for her third and final entry of the series, The Secret Staircase. Kate Hamilton has hired a handyman to remodel the Victorian house she recently bought in Asheboro, Maryland. They find a staircase behind a wall that is hiding the body of a man murdered around 1880. Who was he and what is he doing in the wall? The first two books in the series are Murder at the Mansion and Killer in the Carriage House.

A Galway Epiphany by Ken Bruen is the sixteenth in the author’s hardboiled Jack Taylor mystery series. Jack has retired to the Galway countryside seeking peace after the death of his daughter, but he is hit by a truck and ends up in a coma for a few weeks, suffering no other injuries. There are lots of subplots to wade through, but two missing refugee children show up and save his life after the accident before disappearing again. Why are there nuns looking for these children and what do they want with them? Jack must find the kids before it’s too late.

If you are a fan of Cecelia Ahern’s books (P.S. I Love You, One Hundred Names, Postscript), you may want to search for her latest book, Freckles. As of now, I can only find it on Amazon through a UK publisher. Allegra Bird, nicknamed Freckles, is a parking warden in Dublin. Someone gives her a clue to figure out who she really is: You are the average of the five people you spend the most time with. She sets out on a quest to discover who these influences in her life are and finds friendship and connections along the way.

Book Two in the Providence Falls series by Jude Deveroux is An Impossible Dream. Book One was a time travel book, Chance of a Lifetime, where thief Liam O’Connor fell in love with Cora McLeod back in 1800s Ireland, but destiny intended her for a lawyer named Finley Walsh. Jump to present day: Cora and Liam are fellow police officers in North Carolina and the angels are still watching him. Although he still loves her, he must push her into Finn’s arms so that Liam is not damned for all eternity. Perhaps, love will prevail in Book Three.
