“STEAK SHOOT” WINDS DOWN

Pat Dowd

That’s right –the current “Steak Shoot” season came to an end in November. But the October session brought out most of the “regulars” and several new players as everyone wanted to “stock up” on those delicious steaks before the season ended.

Leading off the winners was Barb Bopp, soon followed by Diane VanHimberger, Joyce Tucere, and Jean Walsh. Set 2 winners were Sue Hammer, Amy Bopp, Louise Ruffner, and Chris Faith.

Moving right along were Carolyn McFaul, Kathy Dietrich, Jean Walsh, Helen Vura, and Barb Bopp as Set 3 winners. Following close behind were Set 4 winners Betty McArthur, Susie Cooper, Mary Alice Curran, and Betsy Grinches. Betty McArthur also won an extra $5 for winning in five cards or less!

Intermission and refreshments came quickly as our caller, Judy Wade, moved each set along very smoothly. Amy Bopp and Rose Gentile sold tickets for the night’s drawing as well as next month’s “Holiday Cash” drawing, and then it was back to business.

Set 5 winners were Sue Obojski, Kevin McCluskey, Ann Turk, and Carolyn McFaul. The final regular set was won by Pat David, Sue Obojski, Marilyn Paulin, and Susie Cooper.

Bonus winner #1 was Lynette David who tool home two packages (four steaks), and Bonus winner #2 was Barb Comiskey who won three packages (six steaks). And our last meat winner of the night was Bob Fitzgerald who won a large package of pork spare ribs.

Our cash drawing winner for the night was one of our regulars, Merrie Pyle, who won $62. Way to go, Merrie!

BOOKBUZZ

Bonnie Easton

What’s new this month? Here are a few new titles.

In Ireland, the ancient game of hurling is a national pastime. Great Moments in Hurling by Sportslife (available on Amazon 12/28/2017) includes photos and information on club matches and legendary players for fans of this sport.

In 1998, Jim Fergus offered his bestselling novel One Thousand White Women: The Journals of May Dodd. He has finally delivered a sequel, The Vengeance of Mothers: The Journals of Margaret Kelly and Molly McGill. In the first book, one hundred white women are the first installment to be transported in 1875 to the west with the intent of marrying them to warriors of the Cheyenne and assimilating the tribe into white culture. The Army would receive a hundred horses in return. Federal officials recruited women for the venture in prisons and lunatic asylums. Based on an actual proposal at the time, the secret program was called Brides for Indians. In this sequel, Fergus tells the story of Irish twins Maggie and Susie Kelly who have lost their Cheyenne husbands and baby daughters in an Army massacre. They seek revenge for their loss and help newly arrived white women integrate into the Indian culture, including newcomer Molly McGill.

Philip Freeman is a scholar of Celtic languages and literature who is writing a series of Celtic medieval mysteries that take place in the sixth century. His stories bring to life the struggles of the early Catholic Church in Ireland. The detective is young Sister Deirdre who was trained in the way of ancient Druids by her grandmother and has taken vows as a nun. Similar to Peter Tremaine’s Sister Fidelma series, the first three books in Freeman’s series are Saint Brigid’s Bones, Sacrifice, and The Gospel of Mary.

Happy Reading!

CHARLESTON & SAVANNAH WERE GREAT!

WHERE TO NEXT?

Pat Dowd

On September 17, a busload of excited travelers headed off bright and early for Charleston, South Carolina and Savannah, Georgia on our Club trip. We were happy to have our longtime and favorite driver, Mark, with us once again, and he was glad to be with us, too.

With rest stops and meal stops along the way, including a stop at Tamarack, near Beckley, West Virginia, we checked into our hotel in Charlotte, North Carolina for a relaxing dinner and complimentary cocktails.

After breakfast the next morning, we headed south to Charleston. Before long we were at the Charleston City Market to shop, browse, and have lunch. By mid-afternoon, we had checked into the Holiday Inn, Riverview. Soon we had freshened up and were on our way to an interesting carriage ride through the historic district of Charleston. The day had flown by, and next we were headed to Patriot's Point for an evening dinner-cruise. Back at the hotel, some opted to unwind with a cool beverage, while others decided to climb into a cool bed!

After our buffet breakfast we headed for the Joseph Manigault House, one of Charleston's most exquisite antebellum homes. Following the tour, we boarded the USS Yorktown for a self-guided tour. There was so much to see on this interesting aircraft carrier, we could have spent the entire day there. But off we went in the afternoon to visit the Historic District of Charleston for lunch, browsing and shopping. The evening took us to The Charleston Crab House on James Island for dinner.

The next morning we were on our way to Savannah, Georgia where several trolleys took us on a most interesting tour of the city. The afternoon flew by as most of us did the river walk and tried to stop into as many of the interesting shops as possible. Byrd's Famous Cookies and the Savannah Candy Kitchen were some of the most popular ones, as attested to by the bags on our bus.

The evening ended on a most interesting note as we had dinner at Mrs. Wilkes' (Boarding House) Dining Room. Dinner consisted of no less than twenty five separate foods at each table, not including dessert! We'd venture to say that Mrs. Wilkes' boarding house was always filled – as were her boarders!

The next morning we visited the Mercer Williams House, checked out the City Market and had lunch. The afternoon itinerary included a visit to Tybee Island where we carefully boarded one of Captain Mike's Dolphin Tour boats. We were able to see some of the dolphins before we headed back to shore. Once we were safely back on the bus, we returned to the hotel to get ready for the evening's festivities

– a wonderful dinner-cruise on the Savannah Riverboat. After enjoying a delicious, leisurely dinner, we enjoyed the entertainment, some of which was provided by our own group. (Pole dancing, anyone?) All in all, a fun day.

The next day, Friday, it was time to head north on our way home. It was great to stop at the Weathervane Winery in Lexington, NC for a wine tasting and gift shop tour. Then we made our way to Milner's Cuisine & Cocktails in Winston-Salem for dinner.

On Saturday we continued our journey north, stopping again at Tamarack near Beckley, WV. In the afternoon we stopped for lunch at a lovely place called Levee House Restaurant in Marietta, OH. In a picture-perfect setting on the Ohio River, we had a delightful lunch at this historic location. We hated to board the bus and leave this idyllic setting because we knew our great trip was coming to an end.

But before it ended, much of the talk on the bus on the way home was, "Where are we going next?" Many wrote their suggestions down and turned them in, while others simply let me know some of their ideas.

We always have a wonderful group of people on our trips, and this year was no exception. A very special thank-you to Mary McCluskey, Rosemarie Gentile, and my sister, Judy Wade, for being such neat and efficient hostesses on the bus. They kept all of us happy with our beverages of choice. Thank you too, to Judy Harmon for being the "banker" for our bingo games.

To learn where we're going on our next trip, and to sign up, be sure to come to our Club's 40th Anniversary Party in January!

Happy Anniversary to Robert and Rhonda Henry who will celebrate their 43rd wedding anniversary on December 22. Congratulations and best wishes to both of you.

Lots of us will be celebrating birthdays in December, beginning with Amy Gallagher who will celebrate her special day on December 4. Mike Brown tried to keep his birthday quiet but we know his birthday is December 11. Watch out for a new driver when Rory Maynard turns 16 this month. Cake and candles are the order of the day on December 9 for Dick Gross. Wish Shirley McGill a happy birthday on December 10. Christmas Eve will be extra special this year as the Heiss and Behm families celebrate RJ Behm's 1st birthday. Darrin Gaffney will celebrate his day on December 27. Wrapping up December birthdays are Chuck Comiskey and Patrick Caffrey, both on December 29.

Sadly, Chuck Arth died November 16.

Also, Don King who lost his brother. Our sincere condolences go out to all of you.
